What will my membership support?

Your membership funds a variety of projects within the College of Fine Arts & Communication:

- Dr. Lesley Jones, Maude Ogle and Dr. Ralph Harrel Scholarships for outstanding students in the college
- Annual faculty awards in recognition of excellence in the fields of teaching, service, and scholarly/creative
- Bob and Sunny Sappington Student Travel Award, which funds students' travel to competitions, seminars and workshops related to their courses of study
- Other projects that directly impact students and faculty within the college

The Future of Performing Arts at Texas State

Plans are moving forward for construction of a new Music Recital Hall and Theatre on campus, thanks in part to the $8 million gift Patti Strickel Harrison and her PSH Foundation made to the university in 2008.

These new facilities will showcase College of Fine Arts & Communication students, attract other talented students and faculty, and enable the university to bring more national and international productions to campus for the enjoyment of the entire community.

The new recital hall and theatre are guaranteed to launch scores of future stars and serve as the cultural center of our campus.

Be a Friend in 2009-2010

Join the Friends of Fine Arts & Communication as we celebrate our 29th year of supporting the College of Fine Arts & Communication and promoting participation in fine arts programming at Texas State University-San Marcos.

The Friends make it possible for the Texas State community to enjoy a variety of outstanding fine arts performances. We also provide student scholarships, reward faculty excellence and increase community recognition and involvement. Our members enjoy social events, volunteer activities and a variety of travel opportunities.

As a member of the Friends of Fine Arts & Communication, you have the opportunity to enhance Texas State's programs in theatre and dance, art and design, communication studies, journalism and mass communication, and music.
